

Prisms of Hope

Prisms of Hope

Void-Wraith: Your light is but a flickering candle in my ocean of shadow, Solaris! The Solaris: No... the darkness... it's not just draining me... it's replacing me!

Maya: The mirror! It's not reflecting light anymore... it's drinking it!

Void-Wraith: A clever tool, little human. It shall be the prism that heralds the eternal

Void-Wraith: BEHOLD THE PERFECTION OF THE VOID!

Void-Wraith: The city is finally quiet. The shadows have won—and the light is no more.

Emotional Arc

Emotion Flow: POWER -> DESPAIR -> HORROR -> MALICE -> TRIUMPH -> GLOOMY

Average Intensity	50%
-------------------	-----

Story Details

Introduction:

High above the neon-lit metropolis, the golden-armored Solaris battled the towering Void-Wraith as it unfurled its ink-like shadows to choke out the sun. The hero's glowing eyes flickered with desperation as the dark matter entity began to drain his celestial strength.

Storyline:

Hurling toward a glass-walled skyscraper, Solaris crashed onto the rooftop, his energy nearly depleted by the entity's suffocating eclipse. There he found Maya, a brave teenager clutching a massive mirror shard, whose quick thinking offered a desperate chance at a counter-strike. By positioning the shard to catch his fading spark, Solaris prepared to turn the building's reflective surface into a massive solar cannon.

Climax:

With a thunderous shout, Solaris channeled his last bit of energy into the mirror, banking a concentrated beam off the glass that erupted into a blinding prism of pure light. The prismatic blast tore through the Void-Wraith, shattering the darkness into harmless stardust and restoring the sky's golden glow.

Moral:

Even the most brilliant light needs a helping hand to overcome the deepest shadows.